Board Votes Three-Year Contract and Salary of $6,000

Arthur J. Laidlaw for 16 years superintendent of schools of Ogdensburg, St. Lawrence county. has been selected from a field of 73 candidates to succeed Bart C. Van Ingen who will retire as superintendent of Kingston schools on August first. Mr. Laidlaw has signified his acceptance of the position provided he can secure release from his contract with the Ogdensburg Board of Education. The selection of Mr. Laidlaw, a man 51 years old, was made from a list of five men whose names had been certified to the board by the special committee which has been seeking a successor to Prof. Van Ingen and the choice of Mr.

Laidlaw was unanimous.

All five of the men selected by the committee were interviewed by the members of the board and all of them were said to have qualifications which "could have filled the bill."

Described As Outstanding Mr. Laidlaw was described as 'the outstanding one among them' and his record at Ogdensburg, at town of approximately 20,000, in-dicates that he will be a man able to continue the policies of the present Board of Education and carry out the ideas and pro-gram laid down so effectively by Mr. Van Ingen during the past

In Kingston next fall the new vocational training building will be placed in service. In Ogdensburg recently has been placed in use one of the most modern of vocational schools.

Contract and Increase

The board of education unani-mously voted to offer Mr. Laidlaw with two annual increments of $500 which will bring his salary to $6,000 at the end of three years. His present salary at Ogbensburg is $5,000. This contract will be dated July first if Mr. Laidlaw can secure his release from Ogdensburg. Arthur J. Laidlaw, Chosen From Field of 73 Applicants, Has Been at Upstate City 16 Years

Salary Increase

Board Votes Three-Year Contract and Salary of $6,000

Arthur J. Laidlaw for 16 years superintendent of schools of Ogdensburg, St. Lawrence county, has been selected from a field of 73 candidates to succeed Bart C. Van Ingen who will retire as superintendent of Kingston schools on August first. Mr. Laidlaw has signified his acceptance of the position provided he can secure release from his contract with the Ogdensburg Board of Education. The selection of Mr. Laidlaw, a man 51 years old, was made from a list of five men whose names had been certified to the board by the special committee which has been seeking a successor to Prof. Van Ingen and the choice of Mr. Laidlaw was unanimous.

All five of the men selected by the committee were interviewed by the members of the board and all of them were said to have qualifications which "could have filled the bill."

Described As Outstanding Mr. Laidlaw was described as the outstanding one among them and his record at Ogdensburg, a town of approximately 20,000, in-dicates that he will be a man able to continue the policies of the present Board of Education and carry out the ideas and pro-gram laid down so effectively by Mr. Van Ingen during the past eight years which he has served as superintendent. "Progressive but conservative" was the description which the board members applied to Mr. Laidlaw's tenure of office at Ogdensburg where recently a building program has been carried out. In Kingston next fall the new vocational training building will be placed in service. In Ogdensburg recently, her here Ogdensburg recently has been placed in use one of the most modern of vocational schools.

Contract and Increase

The board of education unani-mously voted to offer Mr. Laidlaw, a contract for three years, the salwith two annual increments of $500 which will bring his salary His present salary at Ogbensburg is $5,000. This contract will be dated July first if Mr. Laidlaw can secure his release from Ogdens-burg. This will allow him time to familiarize himself with the school duties prior to Prof. Van Ingen's July first, the beginning of the school year. Miss Craig came out of the contest as the second student of Kingston High School to capture Kingston High School to capture tion from Ulster county and that application was considered among the five certified by the committee of threee, Trustees Remmert, Rowland and Feeney who acted with President Schmid. Citizens Interviewed

Prior to interviewing Mr. Laidlaw as one of the final five candidates Trustees Schmid and Row-land visited Ogdensburg and interviewed many residents of the city to determine the standing of Mr. Laidlaw in that community and without exception the reports were excellent. On the theory that, they were investigating the new, vocational school there, the investigation of Mr. Laidlaw was carried on in the town without the real purport of the investigation (Continued on Page 12)

Find Joy, Romance In Great Love Poems

Love's sweet spell—how poig-nantly it's expressed in those lines from Laurence Hope's Indian love lyric—"Ojira to Her Lover." Exquisitely the poem continues:
"Ah loveliest, most reluctant....
All the planets reel around me

And the sands grow dim, uncer-I stretch out my hands towards

While I try to speak but know not what I say!"
Stirring, too, are these lines from "The Other" by Ethna Car-

'Because in me Love's strength is great, Too great for pride, or sin, I knock upon your heart's barred

And pray you let me in."
And what simple touching beauy in the lines of "Song" by Hart-

NEW COAT-FROCK FOR MATRONS!

MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN 9061

The neck-to-hem closing is in style . . . it's SO flattering and makes a dress so easy to don and to iron! Here's Marian Martin's latest version--Pattern 9061-a frock to bring curves smartly into line. In tie silk it's trim enough to wear downtown shopping-and, in cotton-it's ideal as a summerresort dress. Note the movement-fulness of the bodice and the slenderizing sweep of the poke-andderizing sweep of the poke-and-panel design. See, too, how the sleeve flare is gathered in with a band, or left loose for even greater coolness. You've plenty of "leeway" for trim . . . with braid or frilling, and buttons arranged in pairs. And the making is a pleasure.

Pattern 9061 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 5 yards 39 inch fabric and 2¼ yards ruffling.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins for this MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

It's brand new and it's yours to order . . . MARIAN MARTIN'S SUMMER 1939 PATTERN BOOK! See your fashion-future in clothes you'll love to make. Vacation, town and travel fashions! Charm for day and evening . . . basque and petticoat frocks, shirtwaisters, "heatwave" sportswear, June wedding and party gowns! Also patterns suggesting what cottons to pick and what's new in Assembled Outfits! Smartest kiddie, young girl, miss and matron styles are included. Send today! BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. Most women have two ambitions—to make their homes attractively unique—and to spend little doing so

WHEN a woman buys a dress, she isn't always through. Sometimes it is the accessories she adds which make it successful.

So with her home. After she first makes decisions as to wall paper and draperies for a bedroom, she can add a made-to-order bedspread and dressing table skirt that will give the room a distinctly individual air.

Some women believe that "ready-made" bedspreads are more economical.

-Let's see if this isn't a misconception!

Our labor charges for making a bedspread for any standard size bed usually are from $3.50 to $6; for a dressing table skirt, approximately the same.

-But even this reasonable cost can be saved!

Mrs. Darrow gladly will show anyone buying material from her, how to make bedspreads or dressing table skirts-and make them properly. (Brides, please take

So take off the formal spreads you have been using all winter. Put them away and save them. Choose one of the new exciting and colorful Summer-time fabricsmarquisette, organdy, voile, dotted swiss, chintz, or a woven material such as monk's cloth. We'll have it made up promptly in the style you choose-boxed, pleated, shirred, trimmed, plain, etc. Or you and Mrs. Darrow can make it together!

NUISANCE BASES

Referring to the mysterious mission which Hitler is said to have sent to Iceland, with the professed purpose of establishing a Nazi air base there, Columnist Paul Mallon refuses to take it so seriously as some Americans have done. It may not indicate either commercial competition or military purpose.

Authorities in Washington, he says, suspect that Hitler is merely "trying to establish a nuisance base in Iceland." Mallon adds that Hitler "has never overlooked an opportunity to make himself a nuisance in any place in the world, and has established more bases for that purpose than for his planes."

If this is true, the question naturally arises whether Japan hasn't been playing the same game for the same reason. Can it be that many of those islands and harbors seized by Japan lately in the Pacific and Indian Oceans and along the coast of southeastern Asia are meant largely for nuisance value and trading purposes?

Uncle Sam himself has been fairly active in picking up various odds and ends of real estate lately, for one reason or another, in that part of the world. And if it comes to a swapping contest, Uncle may still live up to his old reputation as a good trader.

SURPLUS FRUIT FOR CHILDREN

Needy pupils in some cities are to have fresh fruit free with their lunches. The first fruits to be used are grapefruit and oranges, supplied by the federal surplus commodities

Care will be taken to get this fruit to the right pupils without hurting personal feelings and also without reducing the sales of fruit to pupils buying it regularly. The idea is to distribute more fruit than would otherwise be used, and outside of the normal channels of distribution.

Indigent children in the schools who are already receiving free lunches will have the wholesome citrus fruits added to their lunch trays. Other pupils who pay for their own lunches, but cannot afford good meals, will | the individual has been given hope by his faith in have the fruit added to their trays without

"We are experimenting with the plan," says the superintendent, "and I don't know how it will work out." It is expected to benefit the children and the fruit growers without hurting local grocers or fruit stores.

COMMUTING BY AIR

Use of airplanes for commuting between offices in New York city and homes or business interests in other parts of the country is the routine practice of various metropolitan business men. Mostly they have their own private planes and pilots. Occasionally one operates his plane himself. One man works while flying. He had several seats removed from his seven-passenger plane and a desk put in for that purpose.

The men who come by seaplane and use the downtown Skyport-a seaplane ramp which was built in 1934—land rather close to their offices. The man who comes from Maryland in about two hours spends half the time getting from Roosevelt Field to Rockefeller Center.

Some day it should be possible for these aerial commuters to use autogiro planes and set them down on the roofs of their office buildings, with no time lost.

FINE YEAR FOR HEALTH

The year 1938 had its blessings as well as its disasters. A report issued by the University of California's department of public health states that last year the country set a record for low death rates from all causes, and particularly for tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria and infant mortality,

"We are now in fact the possessors of better general health," says the report, "are less afflicted with diseases known to be preventable, are more secure in the survival and growth of our offspring to maturity, and have an average expectancy of life greater than that of any population group in the history of man." Doctors and public health authorities and special groups such as anti-tuberculosis organizations have done a fine job of educating the public in health promotion and the prevention of certain diseases. There is much to promise that the work will go forward.

NEW CITIZENS

American citizenship is probably appreciated more today than it has been within the memory of living Americans. The National Council of Naturalization and Citizenship, meeting recently in New York, reported a great increase in the number of aliens seeking naturalization. At Ellis Island the authorities reported that they were 73,000 cases behind in their handling of applications. The Department of Labor says the increase has multiplied the burdens on government officials throughout the country.

The reason for this is, of course, the disturbed conditions and the persecutions in other parts of the world. Immigrants who have not yet obtained their citizenship papers are mostly horrified at the thought of having to return to their native lands.

It is easy to believe that most of these aliens will make good citizens. Officials praise their spirit. Even some who have had to be deported on account of legal difficulties are said to show a loyalty to America "which would do credit to a native-born citizen."

It is well to realize that the obligations in this business are not one-sided. Older Americans owe it to the new citizens or candidates for citizenship to let them feel that they are welcome recruits in our democracy, and to help them develop as rapidly as possible into true Americans .

Men cry "Peace, peace!" But there is no peace. There is just everybody giving everybody else a piece of his mind.

The best remedy for war would be a law abolishing uniforms. There couldn't be any military authority without 'em.

It would simplify things at Washington if everybody for a few months would quit running for president.

A garden is a lovesome thing, God wot"until it's full of bugs, worms and what not.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act. FAITH IN MEDICAL PRACTICE

Some capable and successful physicians are still inclined to smile at faith cures, absolutely forgetting that part of their own success is due to the faith their patients have in them. And this faith is inspired by their manner or method of treating their patients.

meet former patients, for whom they felt nothing much could be done, walking briskly down the street in apparent good health. And this good health is often not only apparent but real, because somebody or something—another physician or per-haps a non-medical healer. This faith has encouraged him to get up and about, and this keeping up and going about has strengthened his circulation and lung power, given him a natural appetite, helped to regulate his intestine, and to strengthen his whole body that he 'wants' to get better, to live longer. It has been well said that hope is life's on Tuesday greatest medicine. In speaking of faith in medical practice, Dr. Siegfried Block, in a talk before the Pan-American Medical Congress, said:

"In private practice the personality of the doctor and his ability to gain that confidence with which no one can compete is the essence of this subject. Patients seeking help, mental or physical, from a physician want to be inspired with faith. This kind of faith is very close to that which offers consolation from religion. We all know that doctors as well as patients differ in their personal qualities. That is why one patient may dislike this or that physician and have an abiding faith in another.

The general practitioner, as well as the specialist in every branch of medicine must ever keep in mind that it is the way he treats his patient, his real or personal interest in him (as well as in his ailment) that not only inspires faith in him as a physician but actually may be just what is needed to restore lost health.

Health Booklets

Nine helpful health booklets by Dr. Barton are now available for our readers. They may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y., mentioning the Kingston Daily Freeman. The booklets are: (No. 101) Eating Your Way to Health; (No. 102) Why Worry About Your Heart?; (No. 103) Neurosis; (No. 104) The Common Cold; (No. 105) Overweight and Underweight; (No. 106) Food Allergy or Sensitiveness; (No. 107) Scourge (gonorrhoea and syphilis); (No. 108) How Is Your Blood Pressure?; (No. 109) Chronic Rheumatism

By BRESSLER

For the important thing in Herr Hitler's address to the reichstag was not the relatively inconsequential points as to how the message of the President was addressed or made public in the first place, or whether the inquiry directed to Hitler with respect to the smaller powers was or was not impertinent. What is essential is that Herr Hitler argues for economic "living space," and this involves worldeconomic readjustments, which the American government has been prepared from the outset to study.

The United States is not concerned with boundaries or poli-tical disputes at all, and some Americans here in congress have made the same mistake as Herr Hitler in assuming that nations can lock themselves up in their own territories and remain unaffected by the tides of economic unrest that have swept the world. The depression in the United States in 1930 and 1931 was according to President caused. Hoover, by developments overseas, Mr. Roosevelt was reluctant to accept this doctrine, but today, as business in the last several months has been kept from re-covering by reason of European happenings, it is plain that the big unemployment and relief problems will never be solved in the United States until world trade is restored, and this cannot happen until political stability comes to Europe.

The essential thing in the Hitler reply is that it opens up a debate which will attract the attention of the whole world. What will President Roosevelt say in reply? Will he address a joint session of congress and crystallize public opinion on the issues? Will Mr. Roosevelt, by the restraint and calmness of his response and by careful reasoning on every point raised, make a record on behalf of peace which it will be difficult for the German people

Roosevelt and agree or disagree with various portions of the Hitler address. They can give the assurances which he asks, and, by transmitting them direct to Mr. Roosevelt, the latter can assume the role of friendly intermediary and carry forward the whole project. There is one issue on which the world will be glad to have enlightenment from the statesmen of the democracies. It is whether, n territory once gained by force, other nations must forever be denied access to raw materials. If economic "living space" is afforded, then Herr Hitler is presumably not concerned about political sovereignty. It is the desire for economic opportunity which he gives as his principal reason for relying on the threat of the sword. For, whatever one may think of the bluster or the satire or the indignation which the German chancellor exhibits in his address. there can be no denying the fact that he has himself asked a tell-ing question. It is whether the democracies will exercise unselfishness and forbearance and do justice to the demands of Germany for restoration of German colonies, thus avoiding any need for the use of physical force, and encouraging general disarmament thereby, or whether they will in-sist on what has been called the The Hitler argument is that war has always changed the "status quo" in the past and that peace conferences held after wars have not been just settlements. The United States government, through the President, has an The United States opportunity to place before the world the principle that whatever wars have done in the pas difficult for the German people does not justify a continued to disapprove and turn toward reliance on organized savagery as These questions will not be an-swered for several days, but the the American government may opportunity that has come to find it necessary to offer a pro-President Roosevelt is unparal-leled since the time when Presi-outline, will reveal ways and by a remarkable means of providing the "economic series of addresses to the Con-gress, quickened the hearts of disturbing not only Germany, but peoples everywhere. Work to Increase on Water Works Project at Lackawack

Diversion Tunnel Broken Through; Other Jobs Start

Area Reflects Busy Times as Program Intensifies; More Men to Be Added in Few Weeks

Homes to Go

Village to Pass From Map to Make Way for Dam and Reservoir

Rivulets racing vagrantly down area mountainsides to swell a major stream in one of Ulster county's water sheds, soon will con tribute their share to a man-made lake. Then will come a third transfusion of the Catskills' water resources and still another will follow later to meet the needs of a growing metropolis.

Great masses of soil and rock have yielded their form and substance to this harnessing of water and the natural topography of an-other local area is beginning to show the conventional pattern of snow the conventional pattern of modern engineering.

It is but another tapping of this richly endowed locality, which has been so serviceable to industry and progress of the state, nation and world in general, since the time of early settlers.

Now at Lackawack

Less than a month ago work-men who have literally bored their way through a mountain of rock, broke through at Lackawack to complete one of the major jobs on the gigantic Delaware-Rondout project which will add billions of gallons to New York city's water supply when completed.

The core of this mountain was penetrated for a distance of 2,400 feet and stone and soil which had never been exposed to daylight since the glacier age, lies piled now within the village limits forming a barrier to the quiet life which the community once had

Comparatively small crews of men changed the whole appear-ance of this area within seven months and the result is as amazing as though a mountain had been moved and part of it dumped in this halcyon valley.

The rippling murmur of rapid waters is now lost in the staccato din of powerful machines and intermittently the calm of mountain life is broken more fiercely by the detonations of dynamite

March of Civilization

The mountains themselves seen more conquerable by dint of this effective march of civilization and it all happens here that millions health-giving benefits of some of the best water in the world.

Home-owners, some of whom were descendants of earlier settlers in Lackawack, evacuated when this work first started and soon their homes will be demol-ished as this work of men and machines advances.

Some of these houses are still occupied by workmen on the project and their families, but they too are now preparing to move and by mid-summer nothing will be left of what was once a typical mountain village.

The main highway through the village has been shut off for several months by piles of rock used for fill in the construction of the main dyke. The road has been replaced temporarily by a detour constructed by the workmen. One of these rock piles is almost in the back yard of the general store and the others are further down towards the southern limits of the village.

Ulster county is not only the setting for an integral part of this project, but virtually its source. It is numbered among the great engineering feats of this age as were the construction of the Ashokan and Gilboa dams.

A tunnel which perhaps will be the longest of its type in the world will lead from the vicinity of Lackawack to the Kensico of Lackawack to the Kensico or Lackawack to the Kensico reservoir from where the water will go direct to New York. This will represent the major construction phase of the project and sections of it are now under construction in this area.

Series of Shafts

A series of deep shafts have been sunk at intervals between Lackawack and the southern end of this project and one of these high up on a mountain in the Shawangunks reaches down to a depth of nearly 2,000 feet. Here again the workmen will bore their way through a mountain deep below varying rock strata which has been undisturbed for thousands of Tunnel work was started on each side of the various shafts ex-tending for 200 feet in both directions, by the contractors who did the shaft work. Other contracts have been let for the completion of the main tunnel work and some of the main tunner work and some of this is currently under way.

New York City's Newest Water Works Project Changes Scenes in Ulster

of this is a view of a shaft a few miles from Lackawack along the Vernooy Kill stream. The top of the shaft is seen in the foreground with the water almost even to the top. This shaft extends down Grange No. 969, will sponsor a several hundred feet. The water will be pumped out when the workmen are ready to begin tunnel work. At bottom left is a view at the exit of the diversion tunnel showing men working the powerful pressure drills. At bottom center is another view of men working a different type drill and in the background is the tunnel outlet. At the right, bottom is a view of the entrance of the tunnel which extends through the mountain for 2,400 feet.

The diversion tunnel after serving its original purpose of changing the course of the Rondout, will ing the course of the Rondout in the start of the gantic power shovels and carry rock of boulder size. Excellent Bluestone

Most of the rock is bluestone of an excellent quality and would have been an asset to the industry when it was at its peak in anoth-er section of Ulster county. The er section of Cister county. The engineers on the project explain, however, that it would have been impractical to quarry the stone since it was embedded too deeply in the mountain.

Acres of land in the vicinity are now covered with thousands of tons of this stone and thousands of more tons have been used for fill as a base for the building of

The drilling of rock is perhaps one of the most interesting phases of the work at this time. The drills sometimes are difficult to get started through the more solid strata of stone, but once they begin their determined drive continue through almost like a knife penetrating cheese. Other compressed air drills are used for loosening the rock and their ca-caphonous drone continues inces-santly to intone the progress in this work of men.

Workmen on all jobs of the area wear helmets similar to those worn by the doughboys in the World War as a guard against falling bits of stone and they present a picture of interest in the foreground of great cavernous openings and the steep craggy walls of the larger excavations. Most of the larger excavations. Most of them appear proud of the part they are playing in this mansized job, and they certainly have much to show for their work in so short a time.

One Shaft Completed

One of the shafts not far from this main construction job at Lackawack stands now completed and filled almost to its top with water. Other workmen are pre-paring now to begin their job of extending the tunnel underneath and within a short time, work there too will be in full progress. Other shafts south of this are also ready for tunnel work and it is expected that within a few weeks many phases of the huge project will be underway simultaneously.

The job taken as a whole, represents another important industry in Ulster county with water as something of a commodity. It means employment for many men of the area and an important boom to local business.

Communities near all of the various projects have reflected this new life and are absorbing their respective shares of the business which always comes with such vast projects, and this pros-perity is bound to be felt ultim-ately throughout the entire area.

Graves Suggests Liquor Inventory

Albany, April 29-"All retail liquor establishments, including stores, restaurants, hotels and clubs, should take and keep an inventory of all liquor on hand as of midnight, April 30, 1939," Mark Graves, president of the today. "An inventory will be imperatively necessary," he said, "if the pending legislation imposing a floor tax is enacted, as seems

The law, if enacted, will require all holders of licenses to sell gin, whiskeys, brandles and other liquors, having an alcoholic con-tent of more than 24 per cent, to report and pay a tax on all liquors in excess of a certain number of gallons, which will probably be fifty. It will not apply to ale, beer, wine and other beverages having an elcoholic content of less than 24 per cent.

Included in the inventory should be all such liquor owned by the taxpayer even though some of it may be in transit or liquor stored in warehouses upon which the federal taxes have been paid. In computing gallons, four quart bottles and five fifths will be considered a gallon, and in reckoning unopened cases, a case of 12 quarts will constitute three gallons and 12 fifths, 2.4 gallons. If, and when, the legislation is enacted, the State Tax Commission will promptly send to all retail licensees the necessary blanks and instructions. This advance notice is intended for their advice and convenience only.

The Round-Up TNSIDE the Randall house, Asey

"You, huh? 'Bout time. Wait outside, Ham. Sit down, Kay. Listen an' don't interrupt. You got a job."

She was white-faced when she came out on the porch a short while afterwards.

"Hamilton!" Asey's voice had the quarterdeck ring to it. "Yes, sir!" Hamilton raced in-

"Go to the Town Hall," Asey said. "Just before the last dance, give these notes to Mr. an' Mrs. Leach, Weston, Brinley, his wife, Win Billings, Madame Meaux, an' Jane an' Slade. Give this one to Zeb an' see he starts right along.

Cornel the city and the clears of the result of the course."

"Garnel that Mike Slade vaguely as sociated with fireworks. "What'n time," Asey began, "is—"

"Jane!" It was Eloise Randall's voice that sounded from the cellar. "I really think—that is, of Corral the others an' take'em to Aunt Sara's, an' see they go, an' stay. Lane or someone'll tell you what to do from there. Get'em all, an' keep'em all, see? Beat it!"

course—"

Mike Slade blinked. He almost seemed to see Eloise before him, in that old checked skirt with the uneven hem and the baggy cardigary with the hole in the sleeve.

Of all the group assembled finally in Aunt Sara's living room, no one was more bewildered than Hamilton himself.

Lane came at last. "All here? Come along, please."

He marshaled them into their ton, and acted as a rear guard to the procession up to the hollow.

"Now." he said, "if you'll come indoors."

"Why?" Sara demanded with asperity. "What is this nonsense? Why—"

SARA LEACH swung around. Weston had been standing behind her and Jeff.

"Asey's orders, ma'am," Lane said with finality. Asey himself came out in a mo-

"Now," Asey said, "do let's get this shortage fixed up first."

Sara and Jeff exchanged glances.

"My fault," Jeff said promptly.
"I know. I'm getting too old—I—I might as well face it, I suppose. Whatever the amount is, I'll make it good, Paterson. And then I'll resign and let someone else take my place. On my word of honor, Sara and I have slaved over those figures—what's that, Bessie?"

Mrs. Brinley was muttering reproachful things under her breath.
"I wouldn't," Asey said, "look quite so smug, Mrs. Brinley. Paterson's found you an' J. Arthur out."

J. Arthur's shoulders sagged. He seemed to shrink.
"Asey." Westen, said, "which the dough off Zeb's face. It drives me crazy. I'm sorry, the rest of you. We had to do it. We give him a chance to admit it, but we had to keep on an' try his imagination—what is it, Sara?"
"A chair," Sara said. "And a glass of water. Asey, I don't—I can't believe it!"

She stared at Kry as the girl washed thick dough from Zeb's face. The dummy's clothes hung limply from his body. General Philbrick came up from the cellar. "How was the effect?" he inquired. "I think it worked, don't you? Down there it was fine."

Money And Hate

"I-YES, I did! But what about Jeff and Sara? Where were they on Monday night?" Brinley said. "Where were they when Mary Randall was killed? What-"

"We're not gettin' ahead, here," interrupted Asey. "Let's consider this shortage, an' let's consider the problem of motive— Bessie Brinley, shut up! First things seemed to be against the town, an' then against Mary Randall, an' then Jane—with so much planted on her, an' then Eloise. As a matter of fact, we got just two motives. One's money—the town's money. The other's pure hate. The money come first, an' the hate come in later. The money come in because someone got ambitious, an' the hate part's mostly on account of Jane Warren—what'n time's the matter, out there, Hamilton?" "I didn't hear anything," Hamilton said truthfully. "Go see-" Hamilton went outdoors. When he returned his face was drained

Largest Man-Made Island

Treasure Island was reclaimed from San Francisco bay by army engineers. It was founded in Yerba Buena shoals, which was chosen for a central location, and was financed by over $3,000,000 from WPA funds. A fleet of 11 dredges pumped black sand from the floor of the bay and sloughed it through pipe lines over the shoal. A sea wall containing over 200,000 tons of quarried rock was built. The natural depth was from 2 to 26 feet below water, and a four-acre rectangle was filled in to its present elevation of 13 feet to its present elevation el over 200,000 tons of quarried rock above the tides. It stands now as the largest island ever built by man.

VFW Poppy Sale To Open May 27

"To honor the dead by helping the living," expresses the purpose of the eighteenth annual V. F. W. Buddy Poppy distribution, to be sponsored here May 27 by Joyce-Schirick Post No. 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of the United States.

Disabled veterans, unemployed veterans, the dependents of vet-erans and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans are the beneficiaries of the traditional campaign held each year in conjunction with the observance of Memorial Day, May 30.

The V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., where or phans of war veterans are provided for, receives one cent from each Buddy Poppy sold through-out the country, Commander Skane of Post No. 1386 explained today.

The national rehabilitation and service program of the V. F. W. also receives a share of the Buddy Poppy proceeds, he said. With these funds, the relief of want and suffering among veterans, and their families, is undertaken by approximately 4,000 local V. F. W. posts and more than 2,500 auxiliary units from coast to

Bronxville Woman Plans To Sue New York State

Albany, N. Y., April 29. (A). Willetha F. Chappell of Bronxville, N. Y., plans to sue the state because George Weinberg took his life in a house she owns in White Plairs.

She filed intention yesterday with the Court of Claims to sue for "damages" because District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of Manhattan "induced her by false and fraudulent representation" to lease the property.

Weinberg was to be key witness for the state in the trial of Former Tammany Leader James J. Hines. A member of the gang of the late policy racket king, Ar-thur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer, he and other state witnesses had been quartered in the house pending appearance at the trial. Weinberg was found shot dead there last January 29.

NUISANCE BASES

Referring to the mysterious mission which Hitler is said to have sent to Iceland, with the professed purpose of establishing a Nazi air base there. Columnist Paul Mallon refuses to take it so seriously as some Americans have done. It may not indicate either commercial competition or military purpose.

Authorities in Washington, he says, suspect that Hitler is merely "trying to establish a nuisance base in Iceland." Mallon adds that Hitler "has never overlooked an opportunity to make himself a nuisance in any place in the world, and has established more bases for that purpose than for his planes."

If this is true, the question naturally arises whether Japan hasn't been playing the same game for the same reason. Can it be that many of those islands and harbors seized by Japan lately in the Pacific and Indian Oceans and along the coast of southeastern Asia are meant largely for nuisance value and trading purposes?

Uncle Sam himself has been fairly active in picking up various odds and ends of real estate lately, for one reason or another, in that part of the world. And if it comes to a swapping contest, Uncle may still live up to his old reputation as a good trader.

SURPLUS FRUIT FOR CHILDREN Needy pupils in some cities are to have fresh fruit free with their lunches. The first fruits to be used are grapefruit and oranges, supplied by the federal surplus commodities

Care will be taken to get this fruit to the right pupils without hurting personal feelings and also without reducing the sales of fruit to pupils buying it regularly. The idea is to distribute more fruit than would otherwise be used, and outside of the normal channels of distribution.

Indigent children in the schools who are already receiving free lunches will have the wholesome citrus fruits added to their lunch trays. Other pupils who pay for their own lunches, but cannot afford good meals, will have the fruit added to their trays without

"We are experimenting with the plan," says the superintendent, "and I don't know how it will work out." It is expected to benefit the children and the fruit growers without hurting local grocers or fruit stores.

COMMUTING BY AIR

Use of airplanes for commuting between offices in New York city and homes or business interests in other parts of the country is the routine practice of various metropolitan business men. Mostly they have their own private planes and pilots. Occasionally one operates his plane himself. One man works while flying. He had several seats removed from his seven-passenger plane and a desk put in for that purpose.

The men who come by scaplane and use the downtown Skyport--a scaplane ramp which was built in 1934—land rather close to their offices. The man who comes from Maryland in about two hours spends half the time getting from Roosevelt Field to Rockefeller Center.

Some day it should be possible for these aerial commuters to use autogiro planes and set them down on the roofs of their office buildings, with no time lost.

FINE YEAR FOR HEALTH

The year 1938 had its blessings as well as its disasters. A report issued by the University of California's department of public health states that last year the country set a record for low death rates from all causes, and particularly for tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria and infant mortality.

"We are now in fact the possessors of better general health," says the report, "are less afflicted with diseases known to be preventable, are more secure in the survival and growth of our offspring to maturity, and have an average expectancy of life greater than that of any population group in the his-

Doctors and public health authorities and special groups such as anti-tuberculosis organizations have done a fine job of educating the public in health promotion and the prevention of certain diseases. There is much more work yet to be done, but 1938 seems IN THE SPIRIT OF LORD NELSON to promise that the work will go forward.

NEW CITIZENS

American citizenship is probably appreciated more today than it has been within the memory of living Americans. The National Council of Naturalization and Citizenship, meeting recently in New York, reported a great increase in the number of aliens seeking naturalization. At Ellis Island the authorities reported that they were 73,000 cases behind in their handling of applications. The Department of Labor says the increase has multiplied the burdens on government officials throughout the country.

The reason for this is, of course, the disturbed conditions and the persecutions in other parts of the world. Immigrants who have not yet obtained their citizenship papers are mostly horrified at the thought of having to return to their native lands.

It is easy to believe that most of these aliens will make good citizens. Officials praise their spirit. Even some who have had to be deported on account of legal difficulties are said to show a loyalty to America "which would do credit to a native-born citizen."

It is well to realize that the obligations in this business are not one-sided. Older Americans owe it to the new citizens or candidates for citizenship to let them feel that they are welcome recruits in our democracy, and to help them develop as rapidly as possible into true Americans.

Men cry "Peace, peace!" But there is no peace. There is just everybody giving everybody else a piece of his mind.

The best remedy for war would be a law abolishing uniforms. There couldn't be any military authority without 'em.

It would simplify things at Washington if everybody for a few months would quit running for president.

A garden is a lovesome thing, God wot"until it's full of bugs, worms and what not.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act. FAITH IN MEDICAL PRACTICE

Some capable and successful physicians are still inclined to smile at faith cures, absolutely forgetting that part of their own success is due to the faith their patients have in them. And this faith is inspired by their manner or method of treating their patients.

Sometimes physicians have been startled to meet former patients, for whom they felt nothing much could be done, walking briskly down the street in apparent good health. And this good health is often not only apparent but real, because the individual has been given hope by his faith in somebody or something -another physician or perhaps a non-medical healer. This faith has encouraged him to get up and about, and this keeping up and going about has strengthened his circulation and lung power, given him a natural appetite, helped to regulate his intestine, and to strengthen his whole body that he 'wants' to get better, to live longer. It has been well said that hope is life's greatest medicine.

In speaking of faith in medical practice, Dr. Siegfried Block, in a talk before the Pan-American Medical Congress, said: "In private practice the personality of the doctor and his ability to gain that confidence with which no one can compete is the essence of this subject. Patients seeking help, mental or physical. from a physician want to be inspired with faith. This kind of faith is very close to that which offers consolation from religion. We all know that doctors as well as patients differ in their personal qualities. That is why one patient may dislike this or that physician and have an abiding faith in another."

The general practitioner, as well as the specialist in every branch of medicine must ever keep in mind that it is the way he treats his patient, his real or personal interest in him (as well as in his ailment) that not only inspires faith in him as a physician but actually may be just what is needed to restore lost health.

Americans here in congress have made the same mistake as Herr Hitler in assuming that nations can lock themselves up in their own territories and remain unaffected by the tides of economic unrest that have swept the world. The depression in the United States in 1930 and 1931 was according to President Hoover, by developments overseas, Mr. Roosevelt was reluctant to accept this doctrine, but today, as the last several months has been kept from re-covering by reason of European happenings, it is plain that the big unemployment and relief problems will never be solved in the

It would be a refreshing example of frankness in international relather steps, and so will the governitions, and could not but impress Grant Britain and Germany with the sincerity of the American initiative.

There are various moves which can be made to carry on peace program started by President. Great Britain and France can now express them-selves in formal messages to Mr. Roosevelt and agree or disagree with various portions of the Hitler address. They can give the assurances which he asks, and, by transmitting them direct to Mr. Roosevelt, the latter can as-sume the role of friendly intermediary and carry forward the vhole project. There is one issue on which the world will be glad to have enlightenment from the statesmen of the democracies. It is whether, in territory once gained by force other nations must forever be denied access to raw materials. If economic "living space" is afford-ed, then Herr Hitler is presumably not concerned about political sovereignty. It is the desire for economic opportunity which he gives as his principal reason for relying on the threat of the sword.

For, whatever one may think of the bluster or the satire or the indignation which the German chancellor exhibits in his address. there can be no denying the fact that he has himself asked a telling question. It is whether the democracies will exercise unselfishness and forbearance and do justice to the demands of Ger-United States until world trade many for restoration of German colonies, thus avoiding any need for the use of physical force, and encouraging general disarmament thereby, or whether they will inler reply is that it opens up a sist on what has been called the debate which will attract the "status quo."

The Hitler argument is that What will President Roosevelt say war has always changed the in reply? Will he address a joint "status quo" in the past and that session of congress and crystallize peace conferences held after wars peace conferences held after wars public opinion on the issues? Will have not been just settlements. Paris Summer Clothes Are Swishy

Taffeta, Faille And Moire Lead Sound Effects

By ALICE MAXWELL

Paris (AP)_Like leaves rustling in the breeze are the fresh sounds of summer fashions. Crisp taffeta and stiff moire, swishing faille and starched mus-swishing faille and starched mus-lin all are on the air.

Even the thinnest stuffs add their quota to this vogue of sounds. Sheer black laces pose over rattling pique. Limp chiffons billow out from noisy taffeta backgrounds. Moire frocks and faille suits add their rustle, And wool coats and jackets announce wool coats and jackets announce taffeta linings from afar.

This subtle din is all due to remantic fashions in which wide swirling skirts and cascading flounces play leading parts. The fashions stem from everywhere. Court costumes of the Louis XVI period rub elbows with glorified peasant styles and humble gypsy dresses. All call for stiff stuffs to fashion them or crisp underpinnings to hold

In striking contrast are the new slim-skirted evening frocks— with their tight 1880 styles and bustle-like poufs in back — and tube-shaped Directoire dresses—with waistlines high under the bust and miniature puffed sleeves. Satins fashion the latter. Flowered taffetas and wide-striped failles and moires are used in the poufed models.

Wide-skirted day frocks in peasant style—with tight bodices and rippled hems—get chic support from petticoats of frilled taffeta or starched eyelet muslin. Taffeta petticoats with black or navy day frocks match dress belts or re-peat the color of a button. White embroidery models, too, echo lingerie notes at neck and wrist. Lace-trimmed petticoats match lace-trimmed frocks.

Coats take their cues from peasant frocks. Their skirts are ripple-flared and their tops fit with the snugness of tight bodices. Those coats designed to partner straighter dress styles fall loosely from the shoulder or nip in gently at the waist.

Suggestions For A Bride-To-Be From A Fifth Ave. Beauty Shop

By BETTY CLARKE

(A) Feature Service Writer Many a budget-restricted bride wistfully eyes the expensive beauty salons when she shops for her trousseau. This one time in her life, she thinks, she'd like to go in and order the whole card. To get an idea of what would happen if she did, I visited one of swankiest Fifth Avenue contour shops. Here's what happened-it may give brides a few ideas:

A very efficient young woman in a gymnasium suit took me into a room and I was weighed. She got out her tape measure and sized my upper arm, bust, waist, upper and lower thigh, upper and lower calf and my ankles. "Slightly on the hippy side, aren't you?" she said with a smile, "we'll take care of that. We'll also give you some exercises for that spare tire area around

She led the way to a mirrored gymnasium. There she put me through:

SIDE BICYCLING—Lying on one hip I had to pedal my feet a while, then repeat the exercise on the other hip. That is supposed to smooth the excess off the hips. STRETCHING—Lying on my back, I had to pretend I was grabbing at the ceiling with one hand. I pushed the matching foot as far from my body as possible. I re-peated that with the other hand

HIP SLIDING—I sat down and literally crawled along on my hips, trying to do most of the pulling with my heels.

After 15 minutes of all that I was taken to a nimble-fingered Swedish masseuse who worked on the oversize areas for 45 minutes (Regular exercise, the gymnast told me, would produce about the same results over a period of time, but few women will exercise regularly for long.)

Finally I was led to the shower.

The masseuse put a water-soften-ing pill with a pleasant pine odor in the nozzle, and handed me a cake of lanolin soap. When I emerged from a tepid shower she gave me a rubdown with a com-bination of water, camphor and alcohol...then dried me off with a huge Turkish towel.

Swimming Island

ringia, a district of midland Germany abounding in natural wonders, there is to be found a swimming island. The motorist who proceeds from Eisenach to the little country town of Vacha will discover this lake, not far from the village of Donges. "Hautsee," the lake is called, and on it swims an island some 180 feet long and 60 feet across. The island sometimes stays for months on end at the same point and then, without previous indication, will slip away, often by night, to another spot on the lake. A mysterious quiet prevails about this lake, with which many a superstitious legend has become associated.

Work to Increase on Water Works Project at Lackawack

Diversion Tunnel Broken Through: Other Jobs Start

Area Reflects Busy Times as Program Intensifies; More Men to Be Added in Few Weeks

Homes to Go

Village to Pass From Map to Make Way for Dam and Reservoir

Rivulets racing vagrantly down area mountainsides to swell a major stream in one of Ulster county's water sheds, soon will contribute their share to a man-made lake. Then will come a third transfusion of the Catskills' water resources and still another will follow later to meet the needs of a growing metropolis.

Great masses of soil and rock have yielded their form and substance to this harnessing of water and the natural topography of another local area is beginning to show the conventional pattern of modern engineering.

It is but another tapping of this richly endowed locality, which has been so serviceable to industry and progress of the state, nation and world in general, since the time of early settlers.

Now at Lackawack

Less than a month ago workmen who have literally bored their way through a mountain of rock broke through at Lackawack to complete one of the major jobs on the gigantic Delaware-Rondout project which will add billions of gallons to New York city's water supply when completed.

The core of this mountain was penetrated for a distance of 2.400feet and stone and soil which had never been exposed to daylight since the glacier age, lies piled now within the village limits forming a barrier to the quiet life which the community once had

in this halcyon valley.

The rippling murmur of rapid waters is now lost in the staccato din of powerful machines and iniermittently the calm of mountain life is broken more fiercely by the detonations of dynamite

March of Civilization

The mountains themselves seem more conquerable by dint of this effective march of civilization and it all happens here that millions New Yorkers may have the health-giving benefits of some of the best water in the world.

Home-owners, some of whom were descendants of earlier settlers in Lackawack, evacuated when this work first started and soon their homes will be demol-ished as this work of men and machines advances.

Some of these houses are still occupied by workmen on the project and their families, but they too are now preparing to move and by mid-summer nothing will be left of what was once a typical mountain village.

The main highway through the village has been shut off for several months by piles of rock used for fill in the construction of the main dyke. The road has been replaced temporarily by a detour constructed by the workmen. One of these rock piles is almost in the back yard of the general store and the others are further down towards the southern limits of the

Ulster county is not only the setting for an integral part of this project, but virtually its source. It is numbered among the great engineering feats of this age as were the construction of the Ashokan and Gilboa dams.

A tunnel which perhaps will be the longest of its type in the world will lead from the vicinity of Lackawack to the Kensico reservoir from where the water will go direct to New York. This will represent the major construction phase of the project and sec-tions of it are now under construction in this area.

Series of Shafts

A series of deep shafts have been sunk at intervals between Lackawack and the southern end Lackawack and the southern end of this project and one of these high up on a mountain in the Shawangunks reaches down to a depth of nearly 2,000 feet. Here again the workmen will bore their way through a mountain deep below yawying mock strata which has low varying rock strata which has been undisturbed for thousands of Tunnel work was started on runnel work was started on each side of the various shafts extending for 200 feet in both directions, by the contractors who did the shaft work. Other contracts have been let for the completion have been let for the completion of the main tunnel work and some of the main tunner work and some of this is currently under way.

One contract for tunnel work in this area, estimated at $18,000,000 has ben awarded to Samuel Rosoff, millionaire contractor, who dug some of the subways in New York, and his men now are starting the tunnel job.

In the meantime work will reach a peak this summer on the building of the dam at Lackawach building of the dam at Lackawack and the diversion tunnel which stands now roughly hewn will be finished in concrete and through it will pass the waters of the Rondout creek which have followed a winding course in back of the lowerd Montela.

New York City's Newest Water Works Project Changes Scenes in Ulster

Billions of gallons of water will soon flow into a man-made lake covering farmlands and blotting out the site of the typical mountain town of Lackawack. Amazing progress has been made within less than a year in making preparations to harness the flow of the Rondout creek which rises in the Peckamoose country further up in the Catskills. A diversion tunnel has been broken through and preliminary work has been done on construction of the dam. Shown above, top left, is a general view of the area at one end of the diversion tunnel showing a section of the new course of the Rondout creek. At the top right is a view of the other opening of the tunnel

Freeman Photos of this is a view of a shaft a few miles from Lackawack along the Vernooy Kill stream. The top of the shaft is seen in the foreground commencing at 8:30, Ulster with the water almost even to the top. This shaft extends down several hundred feet. The water will be pumped out when the workmen are ready to begin tunnel work. At bottom left is a view at the exit of the diversion tunnel showing men working the powerful pressure drills. At bottom center is another view of men working a different type drill and in the background is the tunnel outlet. Five-Year Job

Two large cassions which extract of the later, near the start of the gantic power shovels and carry, rock of boulder size.

Excellent Blu Most of the rock is bluestone of an excellent quality and would have been an asset to the industry when it was at its peak in another section of Ulster county. The engineers on the project explain, however, that it would have been since it was embedded too deeply in the mountain.

Acres of land in the vicinity are now covered with thousands of tons of this stone and thousands of more tons have been used for fill as a base for the building of impractical to quarry the stone

the dyke.

The drilling of rock is perhaps one of the most interesting phases of the work at this time. The drills sometimes are difficult to get started through the more solid strata of stone, but once they begin their determined drive they continue through almost like a knife penetrating cheese. Other compressed air drills are used for loosening the rock and their ca-caphonous drone continues incessantly to intone the progress in this work of men.

Workmen on all jobs of the area wear helmets similar to those worn by the doughboys in the World War as a guard against falling bits of stone and they present a picture of interest in the foreground of great cavernous openings and the steep craggy walls of the larger excavations. Most of them appear proud of the part they are playing in this man-sized job, and they certainly have much to show for their work in so short a time.

One Shatt Completed

One of the shafts not far from this main construction job at Lackawack stands now completed and filled almost to its top with water. Other workmen are pre-paring now to begin their job of extending the tunnel underneath and within a short time, work there too will be in full progress. Other shafts south of this are also ready for tunnel work and it is expected that within a few weeks many phases of the huge project will be underway simultaneously.

The job taken as a whole, represents another important industry in Ulster county with water as something of a commodity. It means employment for many men of the area and an important boom to local business. Communities near all of the various projects have reflected this new life and are absorbing their respective shares of the business which always comes with such vast projects, and this pros-perity is bound to be felt ultim-ately throughout the entire area.

Graves Suggests Liquor Inventory

likely."
The law, if enacted, will require all holders of licenses to sell gin, whiskeys, brandies and other liquors, having an alcoholic content of more than 24 per cent, to report and pay a tax on all liquors in excess of a certain number of gallons, which will probably be lifty. It will not apply to ale, beer, wine and other beverages having an elcoholic content of less than 24 per cent. less than 24 per cent.

Included in the inventory should be all such liquor owned by the taxpayer even though some of it may be in transit or liquor stored in warehouses upon which the federal taxes have been paid.

In computing gallons, four quart bottles and live fifths will be considered a gallon, and in reckoning unopened cases, a case of 12 quarts will constitute three gallons and 12 fifths, 2.4 gallons. If, and when, the legislation is enacted, the State Tax Commission will promptly send to all retail licensees the necessary blanks and instructions. This advance notice is intended for their advice and convenience only.

German Silver

German silver is an alloy composed of copper, zinc and nickel, in proportions varying according to the purpose of its use. When intended to replace silver it contains copper, 50 parts, zinc. 25 parts, and nickel. 25 parts. This alloy is harder than silver and capable of taking a high polish. It is used as a substitute for silver in making bells, candlesticks and various utensils, and more especially as a foundation metal in the manufacture of silverplated ware.

Sociologists Make Study

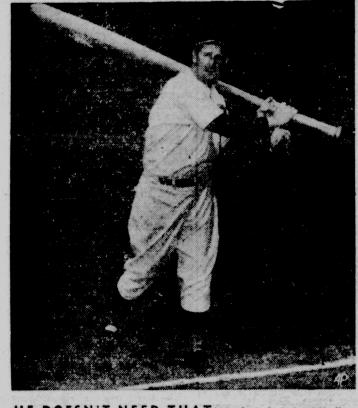

of Personal Predictions Persons living normal routine lives are unable to predict with any degree of accuracy what they will be doing at a given time on the fol lowing day. Increasing inaccuracy mark the predictions for a two-day forecast: for a month ahead the error is still larger. These facts were the predictability of human behavior made by Dr. Pitirim A. Sorokin, professor of sociology, and Dr. Clarence Q. Berger, at Harvard university. The subjects investigated were 103 WPA white collar workers from 17 to 50 years of age, the majority of them females between 20

Each individual was required to make a complete forecast of their activity for the given days on a time schedule basis. When these were checked against the actual activities of those days it was found that for the next succeeding day they deviated from the time schedule by an average of 305 minutes; and for the second day following by 353 minutes. When the forecast was for a business day a month ahead the error was 494 minutes, and for a month ahead on a Sunday the error was largest-536 minutes.

Dr. Sorokin and Dr. Berger, presenting these results in their book, "Time Budgets and Human Behavior," state as their conclusion that the less stable the social conditions the greater becomes the error of prediction. Women, they found, erred more than men; the younger groups more than the older; single men more than married. The lower income classes erred more than the higher.

Mathematical Prize Goes Begging Dr. Paul Wolfskehl of Darmstadt, Germany, who died in 1907, provided in his will for the award of 100,-000 marks to the mathematician who would solve Fermat's theorem. Fermat, a Seventeenth century mathematician, wrote his famous theory in the margin of an algebra, thus: "If n is greater than 2 there are no whole numbers a, b and c such that an+bn=cn. I have found a truly wonderful proof which this margin is too small to contain." Almost every mathematician worth his salt has tried to prove the theorem. According to Dr. J. Barkely Rosser (Cornell), the theorem has been proved for all values of n less than

Williams and Leger Victors In Headline Bouts Friday Night at the Auditorium

In the first round, both pugilists were cautious, but in the second they mixed it quitely freely. One of those hard rights tossed by Williams closed Gallucci's left eye and he fought under a handicap from then until he hit the canvas in the third. A right cross to the chin ended the battle.

Hits in Streaks

Goodman is a paradox of the 32nd degree and you can't blame Manager Bill McKeechnie and Cincipnati fans for keeping their finding over a full season and get his safeties when they meant runs as they have this spring.

It may not take much of a lift from Goodman, because the Reds have a lot of all around power and plenty of pitching. Furthermore, they are leading the league in fielding, which should answer fears about their infield.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

Chapter 48

The Round-Up INSIDE the Randall house, Asey greeted Kay absentmindedly. "You, huh? 'Bout time. Wait outside, Ham. Sit down, Kay. Listen an' don't interrupt. You got job."

She was white-faced when she came out on the porch a short while afterwards.

He avoided the skeptical eyes of Madame Meaux as he rushed out to the kitchen, with the rest following pell mell behind him.

"Snap on the lights, Hamilton!" Assey ordered. "They—well, light that candle if they don't work, then—my gosh!"

while afterwards.

"Hamilton!" Asey's voice had the quarterdeck ring to it.

"Go to the Town Hall," Asey said. "Just before the last dance, give these notes to Mr. an' Mrs. Leach, Weston, Brinley, his wife. Win Billings, Madame Meaux, an' Jane an' Slade. Give this one to Zeb an' see he starts right along. Corral the others an' take'em to Aunt Sara's, an' see they go, an' the collection of the cellar stairs appeared an odd glaring light, and a smell that Mike Slade vaguely associated with fireworks. "What'n time," Asey began, "is—"If you have been an important that it is, of course—" Mike Slade blint. Aunt Sara's, an' see they go, an' stay. Lane or someone'll tell you what to do from there. Get'em all, an' keep'em all, see? Beat it!"

Of all the group assembled finally in Aunt Sara's living room, no one was more bewildered than Hamilton himself.

Lane came at last. "All here? Come along, please."

He marshaled them into their cars, whispered orders to Hamilton, and acted as a rear guard to the procession up to the hollow.
"Now," he said, "if you'll come indoors..."
"Why?" Sara demanded with asperity. "What is this nonsense?

Why-"
"Asey's orders, ma'am," Lane said with finality.

Asey himself came out in a mo-

He was tremendously solicitous about finding seats for them all in the living room. Sara couldn't help thinking how her gray cat had the same manner while he waited at a mouse hole — bland, casual, and apparently not a bit eager.

"Now," Asey said, "do let's get this shortage fixed up first."

Sara and Jeff exchanged glances.

"My fault," Jeff said promptly, some things."

"I know. I'm getting too old—I—I of you. We had to do it. We give might as well face it, I suppose. Whatever the amount is, I'll make it good, Paterson. And then I'll resign and let someone clse take my place. On my word of honor, Sara and I have slaved over those figures—what's that, Bessie?"

Mrs. Brinley was muttering reproachful things under her breath. "I wouldn't," Asey said, "look guite so smug, Mrs. Brinley, Pater-I Philbrick came up from the cellar.

"I—YES, I did! But what about ton's?"

"I don't wonder," Asey said, "You thought you was gettin' old. Brinley's been gyppin' in a small Brinley's been gyppin' in a small but ton's?"

said. "Where were they when Mary Randall was killed? What—"
"We're not gettin ahead, here," interrupted Asey. "Let's consider this shortage, an' let's consider the problem of motive— Bessie Brinley, shut up! First things seemed the best of the formal of to be against the town, an' then against Mary Randall, an' then Jane—with so much planted on her, an' then Eloise. As a matter of fact, we got just two motives. One's money-the town's money. The other's pure hate. The money come first, an' the hate come in later. The money come in because someone got ambitious, an' the hate part's mostly on account of Jane Warren—what'n time's the matter, out there, Hamilton?" "I didn't hear anything," Hamilton said truthfully.

Hamilton went outdoors. When he returned his face was drained

It fell down, righted itself, and stood up again. The face was a glob of chalky white, apparently without any features at all. Suddenly it wheeled and ran with a peculiar swaying stride around to the back of the house.

"Of course if Jane really wants—I mean, one can't really tell, can one? Can one, Weston? Weston thought, at least, I think he thought, that he killed me yesterday, but Weston—where are you, Weston—"

'He's Gone!'

SARA LEACH swung around. Weston had been standing behind her and Jeff. "Weston!" Sara said. "He's gone!

"What?" Jeff said. "A hundred thousand?"

"Over a period of years. He aimed to get as much more this week. He also had two steamship lickets for tomorrow night." "No wonder." Slade said grimly, "no wonder he wanted to make Old Home Week a success!"

"What do you mean, two tick-cts?" Sara asked. "Why two?"

Haverhill Shows Woodstock Work

Woodstock, April 28 - Miss Florence Webster, Woodstock ertist, has been exhibiting a number of her paintings of the Catskill Mountain region at the Public Library in Haverhill, Mass. Also her tapestry work is woven in on exhibition are some of her colors very similar to these she decorations. The two weeks' exhibition has attracted much favorable attention in Haverhill.

The landscapes, which Miss Webster has painted over a number of years spent in Woodstock represent the scenery of Woodstock and vicinity during all seasons of the year and have brought to Haverhill a colorful illustra-tion of the Catskill playground country. An intense love for the out-of-doors of this region is evident in her paintings, and to the people of Haverhill she has brought something of an appreciation of landscapes different preciation of landscapes different preciation of landscapes different lands Equally interesting are the ex- three years to complete,

He went to Ogdensburg first as vice-principal and teacher of science where he served for three and a half years. He coach-ed all athletic teams there and they won statewide recognition. While at St. Lawrence University he was an athlete of note. From Ogdensburg he went to Whitehall, N. Trustee Rowland in reporting on the investigation which he and President Schmid made at Ogdensburg said that the opinion of the residents of the city was that in Mr. Laidlaw would be found a man who was very conservative in the operation of the schools and a man "who will get a dollar's worth when he spends a dollar." One of the largest industrialists told the local men that he did not know what Ogdensburg would do referred to Mr. Laidlaw as a man "alert, progressive, without any ultra-modern ideas."

Salary Embarrassed

In the matter of salary mem-bers of the board expressed embarrassment over the situation. In their investigations to find a suc-cessor to Mr. Van Ingen they found that most towns of the size of Kingston and many villages and towns pay far larger salary than here. For this reason it was difficult to interest many men who might have filled the bill. Numerous smaller towns pay as high as $7,000 for a superintendent.

The selection of Mr. Laidlaw was made on motion of Trustee Rowland seconded by Trustee Lane and the vote was unani-

President Schmid assured the board that Mr. Laidlaw was willing to accept the job and read a telegram stating that if offered the job he would accept and that he would "be anxiously awaiting to learn of the decision of your board of education. If elected, I will do my best to work in harmony with the board of education, teachers and citizens of Kingston."

Mr. Schmid after the selection notified Mr. Laidlaw of the action by telephone. During the discussion it was revealed that there had been 73 ap-plications from five states outside New York. From Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Penn-sylvania and Rhode Island came applications as well as from New York. Marlborough, April 28 - The Board of Education is still trying to correct permanently defects in the sewage system at the Central High School here. The long winter has delayed work on the filter beds, which were fixed temporarily some time ago. Thawing at last has made it possible to make permanent changes. Pipes in the lower filter field are being uncovered, the sand in which they are laid removed, and crushed stone substituted. In most cases the pipes have been found to be plugged up with the sand. Allen Purdy, local plumber, is making an extension of some 15 feet to the pipe line that empties from the filter into Jew's Creek, near

With WPA rolls being cut all over the state, in an effort to operate on funds available, three men who have been employed on the WPA projects in the Town of Marlborough have been laid off. A fourth who has had a leave of absence and overstaved the leave is automatically off the WPA roll and still another who was injured will not be reemployed, it is said. With the WPA force in town reduced to 18 men, it is expected that another cut will be made before very long. There will be about five more laid off. The local crew is still employed on the road extending between Lattingtown and the Trautman farm, a project begun last September. The road is being widened and re-surfaced. It will take about a month before work is completed. The crew will then move to the road ex-tending between the Plattekill road and Eingham street. a stretch of nine-tenths of a mile.

The Rev. George Davies, who has been paster of the Marlborough and Middle Hope ance. churches, has been sent to Stamford, Delaware county, and the two churches in Marlborough and Middle Hope will be supplied. The Rev. Ralph Northrop, pastor of the Milton Church for six years, has been returned to Milton by the New York annual conference of the Methodist Church, held in Poughkeepsie 'last week. Mr. Northrop was returned at the request of the Milton church.

A meeting of the southern district of associated school boards of New York state was held in Kingston High School on Thursday, April 27, and in the Governor Clinton Hotel. Several members of the Marlborough board of eduward L. Dalby attended.

A missionary luncheon was held James Smith of Marlborough was at the home of Mrs. Adelaide H. Wilkie on Wednesday, with 13 ladies present. The mission study book was reviewed by Mrs. Wilbook was reviewed by Mrs. Wilbook

The national rehabilitation and service program of the V. F. W. also receives a share of the Buddy Poppy proceeds, he said. With these funds, the relief of want and suffering among veterans, and their families, is undertaken by approximately 4,000 local V. F. W. posts and more than 2,500 auxiliary units from coast to

Paris Summer Clothes Are Swishy

Taffeta, Faille " And Moire Lead Sound Effects
By ALICE MAXWELL

AP Feature Writer

Paris CPI-Like leaves rustling in the breeze are the fresh sounds of summer fashions.

Crisp taffeta and stiff moire, swishing failfe and starched muslin all are on the air.

Even the thinnest stuffs add their quota to this vogue of sounds. Sheer black laces pose over rattling pique. Limp chiffons billow out from noisy taffeta backgrounds. Moire frocks and faille suits add their rustle. And wool coats and jackets announce taffeta linnings from afar.

This subtle din is all due to romantic fashions in which wide swirling skirts and cascading flounces play leading parts. The fashions stem from everywhere. Court costumes of the Louis XVI period rub clows with glorified peasant styles and humble gypsy dresses. All call for stiff stuffs to fashion them or crisp underpinnings to hold them out.

Suggestions For A Bride-To-Be From A Fifth Ave. Beauty Shop

By BETTY CLARKE

(A) Feature Service Writer Many a budget-restricted bride wistfully eyes the expensive beauty salons when she shops for her trousseau. This one time in her life, she thinks, she'd like to go in and order the whole card.

To get an idea of what would happen if she did, I visited one of swankiest Fifth Avenue contour shops. Here's what happened—it may give brides a few ideas:

A very efficient young woman in gymnasium suit took me into a room and I was weighed. She got out her tape measure and sized my upper arm, bust, waist, upper and lower thigh, upper and lower calf and my ankles. "Slightly on the hippy side,

She led the way to a mirrored gymnasium. There she put me

SIDE BICYCLING—Lying on one hip I had to pedal my feet a while, then repeat the exercise on the other hip. That is supposed to smooth the excess off the hips. STRETCHING—Lying on my back, I had to pretend I was grabbing at the ceiling with one hand. pushed the matching foot as far from my body as possible. I repeated that with the other hand

HIP SLIDING—I sat down and literally crawled along on my hips, trying to do most of the pull-ng with my heels. After 15 minutes of all that I was taken to a nimble-fingered Swedish masseuse who worked on the oversize areas for 45 minutes. (Regular exercise, the gymnast told me, would produce about the same results over a period of time, but few women will exercise regularly for long.)

Finally I was led to the shower. The masseuse put a water-soften-ing pill with a pleasant pine odor in the nozzle, and handed me a cake of lanolin soan. When I emerged from a tepid shower she gave me a rubdown with a combination of water, camphor and alcohol...then dried me off with a huge Turkish towel.

Helps for Housewives

Here's a way to give chops an intriguing flavor—dip them, before broiling, into dressing that has been seasoned highly with garlic. The same idea is good with veal or lamb steaks. It is advisable to strain the fat used for deep fat drying each time. This removes any little particles of food which are likely to be in the fat. Cream cheese mixed with a little chili sauce or catsup makes a piquant filling for sandwiches. They are especially appealing with a hot beverage.

A new use for scissors-use them for trimming pastry in the baking pan. Scissors are easier to handle and make a much neater job than a knife. Remember always to let the pastry extend a half-inch beyond the rim of the pan to allow for shrinkage when the pastry is baked.

Something new for the spring picnic: Split frankfurters half-way through. Insert thin slices of cheese and dill pickle. Fasten together with wood picks and broil in an old-fashioned wire toaster, over a camp fire. The flavors blend deliciously.

A complexion as fresh as the lilles she carries is one Oberon's prized assets. Note the southern-belle colffure that ends in curls underneath the fine net bridal veil.

German Silver

German silver is an alloy composed of copper, zine and nickel, in proportions varying according to the purpose of its use. When intended to replace silver it contains copper. 50 parts, zinc. 25 parts, and nickel, 25 parts. This alloy is harder than silver and capable of taking a high polish. It is used as a substitute for silver in making bells, candlesticks and various utensils, and more especially as a foundation metal in the manufacture of silverplated ware.

Sociologists Make Study

of Personal Predictions Persons living normal routine lives are unable to predict with any degree of accuracy what they will be doing at a given time on the fol lowing day. Increasing inaccuracy mark the predictions for a two-day forecast; for a month ahead the error is still larger. These facts were brought out in an investigation into the predictability of human behavior made by Dr. Pitirum A. Sorokin, professor of sociology, and Dr. Clarence Q. Berger, at Harvard university. The subjects investigated were 103 WPA white collar workers from 17 to 50 years of age, the majority of them females between 20 and 30.

Each individual was required to make a complete forecast of their activity for the given days on a time schedule basis. When these were checked against the actual activities of those days it was found that for the next succeeding day they deviated from the time schedule by an average of 305 minutes; and for the second day following by 353 minutes. When the forecast was for a business day a month ahead the error was 494 minutes, and for a month ahead on a Sunday the error was largest—536 minutes.

Dr. Sorokin and Dr. Berger, presenting these results in their book, "Time Budgets and Human Behavior." state as their conclusion that the less stable the social conditions the greater becomes the error of prediction. Women, they found, erred more than men; the younger groups more than the older; single men more than married. The lower income classes erred more than the higher.

Mathematical Prize Goes Begging Dr. Paul Wolfskehl of Darmsfadt, Germany, who died in 1907, provided in his will for the award of 100,-000 marks to the mathematician who would solve Fermat's theorem. Fermat, a Seventeenth century mathematician, wrote his famous theory in the margin of an algebra, thus: "If n is greater than 2 there are no whole numbers a, b and c such that an+bamen. I have found a truly wonderful proof which this margin is too small to contain." Almost every mathematician worth his salt has tried to prove the theorem. According to Dr. J. Barkely Rosser (Cornell), the theorem has been proved for all values of n less than
